

A method of prevent dishing of large area features during polysilicon CMP enables the use of self aligned CMP polysilicon gates in flash memory circuits. A protective mask is formed over peripheral large area features during poly CMP.